

John Zervopoulos is the managing attorney and a partner of the law firm Salenger, Sack, Kimmel & Bavaro, LLP. John personally represents victims in all aspects of the law, with concentrated focus in the areas of medical malpractice, product liability, personal injury, employment discrimination, and civil rights violations, as well as a sub-specialty in maritime law.

Known for his fierce dedication to his cases from inception to resolution, John has solidified himself as a priceless advocate for clients seeking justice for catastrophic losses and debilitating injuries. His 19 years of extensive litigation experience in federal and state courts gives him valuable insight into the issues that shape the judicial system and result in favorable resolutions for his clients.

Outside of his practice, John is highly involved in a number of professional organizations, including the Nassau County Bar Association, Queens County Bar Association and New York City Trial Lawyers Association. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of the Nassau Suffolk Trial Lawyers Association, working closely with the legislative, political, and media arenas to ensure that Long Islanders know and understand the importance of their rights to justice and how they are safeguarded. Additionally, John volunteers as an Arbitrator for Queens County Civil Court and resolves all claims regarding personal injury, negligence, contractual disputes, corporate and commercial liability, consumer transactions, property damage and landlord-tenant disputes.

John's ongoing success in the law stems from his sense of value and passion for his community. As an active member of the Greek community, John proudly serves as an Officer of the Hellenic Lawyers Association of New York. He participates in a number of local Greek outreach programs and is actively involved in fundraising activities to award scholarships to aspiring students pursuing law careers.

A cum laude graduate of Long Island University, C.W. Post Campus, John earned his J.D. from Hofstra Law School. He is admitted to the Bar in New York, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, and the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. John has been with Salenger, Sack, Kimmel & Bavaro, LLP, since 2000, beginning his journey as an intern during law school. After passing the bar, John joined SKKB as a trial attorney, quickly making managing attorney in a few years and then partner due to his impressive contributions to the firm.
